

Psychology 270T: Multicultural School Psychology: Prejudice and Tolerance
SECTION II

Professor: Dr. Marilyn S. Wilson Office Phone: 278-5129, marilynw@csufresno.edu
Office: S2 354 Office Hours. Mon. 1-3pm, Wed. 12-1 pm, Fri. 8-9 am, 12-1 pm

Course Description: School psychology is a unique, challenging, and rapidly expanding profession dedicated to enhancing the educational and emotional need of all students. The purpose of this course is to provide a format for exploring the social, cultural, and linguistic context of schools.

Course Prerequisites: The course is open only to graduate students.

Course Description: Students will continue their study of cultural diversity and how to develop culturally sensitive learning environments. This segment will focus on prejudice and tolerance. The course will begin with a definition an exploration of prejudice. We will examine historical outcomes of prejudice and stereotypes and current issues in prejudice and tolerance in society. Finally the class will focus on ways to teach tolerance at home and school.

Course Objectives:

- Students will demonstrate understanding of, respect for, and responsiveness to cultural and individual differences by describing the perspectives of those of other ages, abilities, gender, sexual orientation, or ethnicities.
- Students will be able to describe historical and current issues of prejudice and tolerance that impact children and their education.
- Students will display critical thinking in presentations and discussion of ways to decrease prejudice and increase tolerance in schools and surrounding communities.

Cheating and Plagiarism: –Cheating is the practice of fraudulent or deceptive acts for the purpose of improving a grade or obtaining course credit. Typically, such acts occur in relation to examinations. It is the intent of this definition that the term “cheating” not be limited to examination situations only, but that it include any and all actions by a student which are intended to gain an unearned academic advantage by fraudulent or deceptive means” (CSU, Fresno, Faculty Handbook, 1990-91, p. 97).

–Plagiarism is a specific form of cheating that consists of the misuse of the published and/or unpublished works of another by representing the material so used as one’s own work” (CSU, Fresno, Faculty Handbook 1990-9 1, p. 97).

The Professor expects students to maintain honesty and integrity in their academic performance and professional conduct. Suspicions of cheating and plagiarism will be dealt with according to the Academic Policy Manual of the CSU, Fresno. If the student has questions regarding the actions that would or would not be acceptable behavior as relating to cheating and plagiarism, it is the responsibility of the student to clarify such activities with the Professor. Furthermore, if a student observes another student(s) cheating or plagiarizing, the student should confront the student(s) directly and notify the Professor. The student(s) suspected in such cases will be afforded due process. Additional guidelines related to this issue are attached.

In addition, accusations of racism, prejudice, or bias are considered intolerable by the Professor. Any suggestions or evidence of such will result in dismissal of the student from the course and the program. Due process will be afforded to the student in question.

Course Ethics: CASP, NASP, and APA Ethical Guidelines will apply to all aspects of this course. Thus, names or identities of children, parents, teachers, etc., who are observed are to be kept strictly confidential. Failure to adhere to this policy may result in a grade of F and dismissal from the course and the program.

Students with Disabilities: Upon identifying themselves to the instructor and the university, students with disabilities will receive reasonable accommodation for learning and evaluation. For more information, contact Services to Students with Disabilities in University Center Room 5 (278-2811).

Honor Code: –Members of the CSU Fresno academic community adhere to principles of academic integrity and mutual respect while engaged in university work and related activities.” You should:

- understand or seek clarification about expectations for academic integrity in this course (including no cheating, plagiarism and inappropriate collaboration)
- neither give nor receive unauthorized aid on examinations or other course work that is used by the instructor as the basis of grading.
- take responsibility to monitor academic dishonesty in any form and to report it to the instructor or other appropriate official for action.

Computers: "At California State University, Fresno, computers and communications links to remote resources are recognized as being integral to the education and research experience. Every student is required to have his/her own computer or have other personal access to a workstation (including a modem and a printer) with all the recommended software. The minimum and recommended standards for the workstations and software, which may vary by academic major, are updated periodically and are available from Information Technology Services (<http://www.csufresno.edu/ITS/>) or the University Bookstore. In the curriculum and class assignments, students are presumed to have 24-hour access to a computer workstation and the necessary communication links to the University's information resources." Computers will not be used in class except as approved by the professor.

Disruptive Classroom Behavior: "The classroom is a special environment in which students and faculty come together to promote learning and growth. It is essential to this learning environment that respect for the rights of others seeking to learn, respect for the professionalism of the instructor, and the general goals of academic freedom are maintained. ... Differences of viewpoint or concerns should be expressed in terms which are supportive of the learning process, creating an environment in which students and faculty may learn to reason with clarity and compassion, to share of themselves without losing their identities, and to develop and understanding of the community in which they live . . . Student conduct which disrupts the learning process shall not be tolerated and may lead to disciplinary action and/or removal from class." Cell phones should be turned off in class except in case of family emergency.

Grading:

The course is credit/no credit. An important component of class this semester will be participation. You are expected to read any assigned materials prior to class and bring any other relevant readings to share. For some classes a focus is assigned to each school psychology cohort. Each group (2 groups from 1st year, 3 groups from 2nd year, 2 groups from 3rd year) will develop a 20-30 minute presentation on their assigned topic. Videos and activities that involve the entire class are encouraged. Handouts that provide the class in additional information on your topic will be expected.

Attendance: Attendance is expected at all classes. However, due to potential scheduling conflicts, each student may be excused from one class session. The student missing the class will be responsible for obtaining notes and handouts for the class missed from their peers, and will need to turn in a one to two page summary of the topic presented to the instructor prior to our next scheduled class meeting. For each additional class a student misses, the student will be required to write an 8 to 10 page paper (APA style with a minimum of 10 references) on a topic of the professor's choosing.

Psychology 270T The Psychology of Culture and Diversity
SECTION III

Instructor: Dr. Robert Levine
Office: SII 353 Phone: 278-2045
e-mail: robertle@csufresno.edu
Office Hours: by appointment

This is an ever-changing brief course for school psychology students who will be working with the culturally and economically diverse population of the Central Valley of California. This semester, students will be engaging in 10 hours of volunteer placement with a community organization working with a culturally diverse population. For most of you, the placement will be with Stone Soup, an organization which provides a wide range of services to the southeast Asian population in Fresno. (If Stone Soup does not work out for you, please come see me to make your own arrangements for an alternative placement.)

INITIAL MEETING

We will have an initial meeting with the Executive Director of Stone Soup, Kathy Garabed, on Tuesday Sept. 9th at 5pm at Stone Soup, which is at 1345 Bulldog Lane, about $\frac{3}{4}$ mile west of campus. (A map with directions is on their website, www.stonesoupfresno.org). Ms. Garabed will describe the project she has in mind, which will involve working with Southeast Asian students and their parents, explain how you can get involved, and get you started on working out a schedule. Schedules will be flexible.

REQUIRED READING

None. However, I highly recommend: Fadiman, Anne (1997). The Spirit Catches You and You Fall Down (New York: Noonday Press). It is a great description of Hmong culture and the problems of crossing this cultural gap.

FINAL MEETING

We will also meet as a group once at the end of the semester, on campus, to discuss our experiences. I will announce the time/day of this meeting later on.

WRITTEN ASSIGNMENT

You will turn in a brief (2-3 page double-spaced paper) describing your experiences at Stone Soup. You should also address what you learned about this cultural community and how you might apply your insights as a school psychologist.
